

Introduction

This document will trace the lineage of Kenneth F. Guerin (b. 29-Oct-1965) back to his French-Canadian ancestry and through to France and other locales. It will contain tabular data consisting of genealogical links between people and their biological parents, the vast majority of whom were married when they were conceived or born. In the cases of common ancestry, which occurs the further back in time we go, it will also contain links between siblings.

Lineage Nodes

As the lineage goes back 13 or so generations, a singular graphical or textual tree would be too cumbersome to navigate. To address this issue, lineage nodes will be defined consisting of a person at the base of the node tree and extending four generations upward. From those end points, more nodes, if necessary, will be defined. At four generations per node, up to 31 individuals will be identified, with up to 16 end points for further extension.

Coupled with each node will be information related to the marriages between the parents. Special stories and other circumstances, such as unions out of wedlock, modes of death, etc, will be so noted.

All lineage nodes will be numbered incrementally from 0, the Root Node. Links from one node to another will be labeled as \(Node N\) and will also serve as an in-document link to allow navigation between nodes.

Common Ancestors

At their simplest, genealogy trees define parent-child relationships over time. As ancestral parents can have several children whose descendants can form downstream relationships, it is possible for the same person to appear in different places in one's tree. In places where this happens in this document, cross-reference links, labeled as \(XRef\), will appear with each person's entries to allow the reader to navigate among these multiple locations.

Additionally, only one of these nodes will show that person's ancestral tree in order to avoid a duplication of effort and a possible source of transcription errors.

Québec: A Short Legal History

All locations referenced in this document will follow the WikiTree guidelines of giving the name as it was officially known at the date and time of the reference. As Québec, under its various names, was and is a primarily French-speaking province, I will use the French names of the locations within that province in this document.

The province of Québec went through several name changes throughout its history, in both French and English. As most of this lineage is traced to that province, it is important to note the name changes here:

- Nouvelle-France (1605-1763)
- Québec, Amérique coloniale britannique (1763-1791)
- Bas-Canada (1791-1841)
- Canada Est (1841-1867)
- Québec (1867-Present)

For brevity, I will refer to "Québec, Amérique coloniale britannique" as "Québec, Britannique" in this document.

Canada as a singular nation or dominion or colony did not exist until the Confederation of Canada was enacted in 1867 with the Constitution Act. Prior to that Commonwealth law, the provinces of Canada were independent entities.

Under French control as Nouvelle-France, Québec was a separate entity from the French colony of Acadie, present-day New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Following the loss of the final French & Indian War, or Seven Years' War, Nouvelle-France became known as Québec, itself a new part of the British American colonies.

The Constitutional Act of 1791 created the Province of Lower Canada and the Province of Upper Canada, modern-day Québec (and portions of Labrador) and southern Ontario, with "lower" and "upper" referring to its geographical locations relative to the flow of the St. Lawrence River.

The Act of Union in 1840, passed following the Lower Canada Rebellions of 1837-1838, merged Upper and Lower Canada into one province. Administratively, the two halves were governed separately, with Ontario being Canada West and Québec being Canada East. While the use of the names Upper and Lower Canada returned to official usage in 1849 following the passage of an interpretation act by the Canadian Parliament, it did not change the fundamental names of the provinces. The interpretation act simply allowed for the continued usage of the common, pre-1840 names of the provinces/areas in question.

Acadie

Unbeknownst to me at the beginning of this exercise, some of my family tree reaches the French colony of Acadie, now currently known as Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

What are dit/dite Names?

From thoughtco.com/what-is-a-dit-name-3972358:

A dit name is essentially an alias, or alternative name, tacked on to a family name or surname. Dit (pronounced "dee") is a French form of the word dire, which means "to say," and in the case of dit names is translated loosely as "that is to say," or "called". Therefore, the first name is the family's original surname, passed down to them by an ancestor, while the "dit" name is the name of the person/family is actually "called" or known as.

Dit names are found primarily in New France (French-Canada, Louisiana, etc.), France, and sometimes Scotland. They are used by families, not specific individuals, and are usually passed down to future generations, either in place of the original surname, or in addition to it. After several generations, many families eventually settled on one surname or the other, although it isn't uncommon to see some siblings within the same family using the original surname, while others carried on the dit name. The use of dit names slowed dramatically during the mid- to late-1800s, although they could still be found used by some families into the early twentieth century.

Why a Dit Name?

Dit names were often adopted by families to distinguish them from another branch of the same family. The specific dit name may also have been chosen for many of the same reasons as the original surname - as a nickname based on trade or physical characteristics, or to identify the ancestral place of origin (e.g. Andre Jarret de Beauregard, where Beauregard refers to the ancestral home in the French province of Dauphine). The mother's surname, or even the father's first name, may also have been adopted as a dit name.

Interestingly, many dit names derived from military service, where early French military rules required a nom de guerre, or war name, for all regular soldiers. This practice was a precursor to identification numbers, allowing soldiers to be identified collectively by their given name, their family name, and their nom de guerre.

- Powell, Kimberly. "What Is a Dit Name?" ThoughtCo, Aug. 27, 2020

As the French language is one that has masculine and feminine versions of words, "dite" (pronounced "deet") is used for women's names.

Transcription Difficulties

I am using WikiTree as my primary source material. As of this edit (19-Aug-2021), I have made 1300+ contributions to the site. While quite a few of the profiles and quite a bit of the research is very good, it is not a perfect. There are millions of profiles... and not everyone who has submitted information understands the French language and the French use of accented characters, never mind the dit /dite naming conventions. While WikiTree has support for such naming conventions, the "aka" names are not usually displayed until one goes directly to the individual profile. With thousands of names in my section of the global tree alone, this can be a time-consuming undertaking.

As I visit each person's profile to provide marriage information, get historical notes, etc, I will make corrections with regard to the use of accented characters, dit / dite names and/or, sometimes, spelling. (The latter is especially tricky as spelling gets creative the further back in history you go and clerical errors are quite common.) Any transcriptions errors and/or erroneous corrections contained within this document are my own. Mea culpa.

Notable People

Describing people as notable is admittedly subjective. However, some people's places in history are unique. They will be marked as such.

- I. (FaM): This marking will denote women who were among Les Filles à Marier.
- II. (FdR): This marking will denote women who were among Les Filles du Roi.
- III. (PoA): This marking will denote men who were Pioneers of Acadia.
- IV. (MoA): This marking will denote women who were Mothers of Acadia.

Geography

People who migrated to North America from abroad, or who were indigenous to North America, will be marked with location text. Native people will have their tribe listed as well as their original birth region of North America. Migrants to North America will have their country of origin and either a major city listed or a region within that country. Country, city and region names will be contemporary to the time of their birth and in the language of the country. The color of the text used will be different between indigenous and migrant peoples.

- I. (Normandie, France): the region of Normandy in France
- II. (Paris, France): the city of Paris in France (in the region of Île-de-France)
- III. (Huron, Pays du Huron): a member of the Huron tribe

Major cities in France in the 16th/17th centuries:

- Paris: in the region of Île-de-France
- Rouen: in the region of Normandie
- Caen: in the region of Normandie
- La Rochelle: in the region of Poitou, Duchy of Aquitaine
- Le Havre: in the region of Normandie
- Poitiers: in the region of Poutou

The Duchy of Aquitaine was composed of minor sub-regions in the 16th / 17th centuries, which may be referenced:

- Poitou

- Saintonge
- Périgord
- Limousin
- Auvergne
- Marche

Research Markings

While a lot of work has been across various sources, some work remains. Markings will be sprinkled throughout this document to show where future research is needed.

- I. ???: This marking in the node tree will show where research is actively, if not intensely, being conducted
- II. [?]: This marking in the Marriage Information or associated Notes sections will show where future research may be conducted in order to find more details that current sources (aka WikiTree) is lacking

Research Notes

- No witnesses nor parents were recorded for Francis Xavier Nero’s (recorded as Neron) marriage to Mary Jane Bridges in the church records
- Ida Nero was born in 1861, 4 years before the marriage
- It is possible that Francis served in the Union Army in the US Civil War, which would explain his absence, but I have found no record of this yet
- Research: Mary Jane Bridges:
 - Parents: Thomas Bridges & Mary Franke, possibly of Ontario
 - 2nd Marriage: John Butler, 20-Apr-1874 in Lowell Massachusetts
 - An Eddie Butler was a friend of the later-generation Guerin family
 - 1850 US Census has Mary living with her parents
 - 1860 US Census has Mary living with her parents
 - 1870 US Census has Mary and her daughter, Ida, living with her parents and siblings
 - 1880 US Census has Mary living with her 2nd husband, John Butler, in Lowell, Massachusetts

Marriage Information

Notes

- This line of the family, beginning with Marie Madeleine Martin dite Barnabé is Acadian, not Québécois.
 - More Acadian research needed to tie personalities to historical events
- Laurent Granger’s birthplace could have been Plymouth, Massachusetts Bay Colony (1643)
- Antoine Bourg is the patriarch of the Bourg / Bourque family. He was one of the first Acadian settlers.
- Antoinette Landry is a "Mother of Acadia"
 - http://www.acadian-home.org/mothers.html
- Simon Pelletret is not officially on a Pioneers of Acadia list, but as his DNA lives on, he should be on the list.

- Jean Maranda dit Latourette m. Jeanne Cousin on 3-Jul-1651 in Sainte-Catherine-de-la-Flotte, France

Notes

- François Fournaise dit Laboucane served in Compagnie de Montigny (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Jacques_Testard_de_Montigny) and was a soldier at the time of his marriage. I am assuming CFM as French regular army troops, apart from Carignan-Salières, did not fight in Nouvelle-France until the 7 Years War (aka French & Indian War)
- Étienne André Jean Serre dit Saint-Jean served in Compagnie de la Motte Cadillac. He was court-martialed and exonerated in 1706 in an incident involving the self-defense killing of Jean Barthody dit Savoyard.

- WikiTree page for Louis Pelletier dit Sansoucy gives his company name in the CFdM as St-Ours. St-Ours was a Carignan-Salières Régiment company, but as companies were named after their commanders, or after places, and could have been reassigned, it is theoretically possible.

Notes

- There are lengthy stories regarding Étienne Denevers dit Brentigny on his WikiTree profile [Denevers-4]
- Three months after Pierre Picher dit Lamusette’s arrival in Nouvelle-France, he learns from his brother that his wife, Marie Lefebvre, has died. In 1665, he marries Catherine Durand. In 1671, he learns that his first wife is still alive in France, annulling his second marriage. He returns to France to look for her and bring her to Nouvelle-France, but she dies during the sea crossing. His second marriage to Catherine Durand is rehabilitated on 9-Sep-1673.

Marriage Information

Notes

- Antoine Gaboury was arrested on 23-Oct-1668 on the charge of rape. The accusers were Françoise Hébert and his 10yo daughter Jeanne. After testimony was heard, he was found guilty and sentenced to: shaving, a public beating and was sent to the galleys for 9 years. Additionally, he was fined 500 livres with half going to pay for his victim’s expenses for the Ursuline boarding school and half going to the poor of the local hospital. Finally, his belongings were seized and sold at auction and he was placed on the first ship leaving for France and handed over to the galley guards. Eventually, he returned after his exile and married Jeanne Mignault dit Châtillon.
- Jean Mignault dit Châtillon was a soldier in 1647, but for whom and what organization?
- Marie Louise Cloustier is the daughter of Zacharie Cloustier and Sainte Dupont, who also emigrated to Nouvelle-France (Node 66a).

Marriage Information

Notes

- Martin Ondoyer is of unknown origins, probably from France. His last name, Ondoyer, is a variant of ondoyé, a term used to describe a difficult childbirth. He may have been abandoned at birth.
- Martin Ondoyer and his wife, Marie, were prosecuted for participating in bad trades with the local Indians (Native Americans):
 - Appearance of Martin Ondoyer and Marie Énard, his wife, appearing by the said Enard, defendants, made at the request of the King’s prosecutor, following a prosecution made last fall against the said defendants for having bought and stripped the Indians (Native Americans) from their herds. On the daily complaints made to the Court by the Indians who claim that the said Ondoyer and his wife take their money and their clothes from them after having intoxicated them, the Court had forbidden them to welcome other Indians into their house. However, the said Ondoyer and his wife continued their bad trade in defiance of the said sentence, having recently taken the shirt and hood of a Wild Abenaki named Manitonguay. The defendant replied that it did not buy the hood and that it did not buy the shirt for the amount of 12 pounds. The Court condemns the said Ondoyer and his wife to a fine of 50 pounds applicable to the parish church for the contravention of ordinances, with the defense of recidivating under greater penalty, as well as to the taxed and moderate costs at the sum of 4 pounds and 9 floors, French currency – (BAñQ Archives, Quebec Archives, Fonds Juridiction royale des Trois-Rivières)

Notes

- There is little detail on WikiTree regarding Nicolas Janvrin dit Dufresne. Due to his ‘dit’ name, he could have come over as a soldier at some point. The history on the Compagnie Franches de la Marines is not as well known as the Carignan-Salières Régiment. His occupation is listed as merchant (marchand).
- Mathieu D’Amours’ ancestors were of French nobility. (Future Research: “Tables Généalogiques de la Noblesse Québécoise du XVIIe au XIXe siècle” by Drolet, Yves (Table 54))
- Mathieu D’Amours had a distinguished career as town-major of Québec and member of the Conseil Souverain as well as being Sieur de Matane.

The Story of Marie Gillette Banne

From "Before the King's Daughters: The Filles à Marier, 1634-1662" by Peter J. Gagné

Gillette Banne was born about 1636 in Argences (arrondissement of Caen, diocese of Bayeux), Normandy, daughter of Marin Banne and Isabelle Boire or Bour. She came to Canada in or before 1649. About 1649, Gillette married Marin Chauvin dit Lafortune in Trois-Rivières. Marin is from Le Mesnil in the parish of Saint-Médard-de-Réno (canton of Tourouvre, arrondissement of Mortagne), Perche.

On 08 March 1648 in Tourouvre, notary Choiseau drew up an enlistment contract for Marin to go to New France in the service of Noël Juchereau. Pierre Juchereau acted as agent on behalf of his brother, enlisting Marin for three years at the salary of 40 livres per year, with an advance of 10 livres. This low salary may be due to the fact that Marin was an unskilled laborer. Gillette and Marin had a daughter, Marie, who was baptized 08 September 1650 at Trois-Rivières. She was to be their only child, for Marin Chauvin died at Trois-Rivières some time before 07 June 1651, when Monsieur d'Ailleboust granted Gillette 1/3 of an arpent in the town site of Trois-Rivières, between Sébastien Dodier on the southwest and the palisade on the northeast, on the condition that she build a house and have it re-enclosed with a good fence.

In 1653, Gillette married Jacques Bertault in Trois-Rivières. Neither spouse could sign the marriage contract drawn up 27 July by notary Ameau. A locksmith, Jacques was born about 1626 in Les Essars (arrondissement of La Roche-sur-Yon, diocese of Luçon), Poitou, the son of merchant Thomas Bertault and Catherine Coulonne. He and Gillette had six children. Son Jacques was baptized at Trois-Rivières 25 November 1654, followed by Marguerite (21 December 1655) and Suzanne (18 December 1657). Élisabeth-Thérèse was baptized 23 January 1659, followed by Jeanne (29 March 1660) and Nicolas (26 February 1662). Gillette Banne was confirmed 22 May 1664 at Trois-Rivières. Sadly, son Jacques died some time before the 1666 census.

Daughter Élisabeth married Julien Latouche on 12 August 1671. While Élisabeth was a mere 12 years old, her husband was 30. Latouche was unsuccessful at farming his land at Trois-Rivières, and Jacques and Gillette often had to send food to the couple or have Élisabeth come eat with them. What is more, Latouche allegedly beat Élisabeth. The beatings and failure at farming were both apparently the result of heavy drinking on the part of Latouche. And so, with the apparent knowledge and complicity of their daughter, Gillette and Jacques poisoned their son-in-law Julien Latouche.

Both Gillette Banne and Jacques Bertault were sentenced to death by the criminal court of Québec City for the murder of their son-in-law. They appealed to the Conseil Souverain. Élisabeth was also found guilty of the crime, but did not appeal to the Conseil Souverain. The Council rejected the appeal and sentenced Gillette and Jacques to be hanged. Before the hanging, they were to have a rope attached to their necks and be lead "nu en chemise" with a torch in their hands to the doors of the church, where they were to kneel and beg forgiveness for their crimes to God and the King. They were then to be hanged upon scaffolds set up in the Grande Place in the haute ville. In addition, Jacques was to have his arms and legs broken with a rod, which Gillette and Élisabeth were forced to witness before Gillette's execution. After his execution, Jacques' body was to be displayed on a wheel at the Cap-aux-Diamants to serve as an example. All three were collectively sentenced to a fine of 60 livres, half to be paid to the Récollets to pray for the repose of the victim's soul and half to the King, with the remainder of their property to be confiscated by the State.

And so Gillette Banne and Jacques Bertault were executed in Québec City at four o'clock in the afternoon on 09 June 1672. Given her age, the Conseil Souverain took pity on Élisabeth and only sentenced her to make a public apology and to be a witness to the execution of her parents. The Council also decreed that the surplus of the confiscated property (after court costs) would be given to Nicolas and Jacques Bertault, minor children of Gillette and Jacques.

From "Les Crimes et Les Chatiments au Canada Français Du XVIIe au XXe Siècle" by Raymond Boyer, pp 106-107

In 1672, the Sovereign Council heard the appeal of Jacques Bertault and his wife Gilette Baune against the sentence of death for the assassination of their son-in-law, Julien Latouche. Their daughter Isabelle, thirteen years of age, widow of the victim, was also condemned but she did not make an appeal. At twelve years of age, Isabelle had wed against her will LaTouche, who was thirty. Latouche did not succeed in producing on the lands that he had rented at Trois-Rivieres and his father-in-law, Bertault, often had to fill up the resources which were lacking in the household by sending food to his daughter or by going to get her to eat at his home. Moreover, Latouche drank and beat his wife who told him: "I wish that you would die"

At the trial which took place at Quebec, the interrogation disclosed that Bertault and his wife had killed their son-in-law by blows of a spade while their daughter, Isabelle, assisted passively in the murder. She helped, moreover, in dragging the body to the river. The Council rejected an appeal and condemned Bertault to "be taken from the prisons of this city by the executioner of high justice, led before the door of the parish church of this city, rope about the neck, a lighted torch in hand, naked in a long shirt, and there, on his knees ask pardon of God and of the King for the crimes committed by him; and also to be strangled on a cross of St Andrew which shall be placed on the scaffold which shall be erected in the town square of the upper city. And afterwards to have the arms and thighs broken each by a blow of a bar"

After the execution his body was carried upon a wheel to the Cap aux Diamants in the usual place to serve as example. His wife, Gilette, was condemned to the same penalty except that she would not have her limbs broken nor be placed upon the wheel. "Having regard for the age of the said Isabelle Bertault LaTouche, with mercy and without consequence" the Council condemns her to make honorable amends "in the form and manner as stated" and to be present at the execution of her parents. The three guilty persons were also condemned with a fine of 60 Livres, one half to the Recollet Fathers to pray God for the repose of the soul of the victim, the other half and the surplus of their goods taken and confiscated to be remitted to Nicolas and Jeanne Bertault, minor children of Jacques and Gilette. [Jeanne was 12 years old and Nicolas 10 years]

Marriage Information

Notes

- According to sources, Pierre Doucet dit Laverdure was probably a Huguenot.
- Julien Lord dit Lamontagne is unique in many ways. At 13 years of age, he is a member of the Carignan-Salières Régiment in cie Laubias (same as Louis Robert dit Lafontaine). Unlike the others who stayed behind in Canada, he wound up in Acadiei instead of Nouvelle-France... presumably. (There is some debate on this.)
